We like to be creative and don't believe in dependency so enjoy working with our partners to come up with creative, entrepreneurial solutions to problems.

Clean water, milk producing cows, fish farms and guest houses – just a few of the diverse Links projects. The key is that they are sustainable and income-generating.

Partners in Malawi run leadership training programmes, training seminars, and an accommodation centre for indigenous church planters. Each year thirty leaders are trained and equipped to grow and develop the church and communities in Africa. The problem? Overseas church funding had run out.

Our challenge? To come up with an income-generating project that would yield enough profit to cover all annual expenses.

Links International proposed building a Guest House on training centre land by Lake Malawi – one of Malawi's biggest tourist attractions. Thanks to one of our generous investors, all capital costs have been raised, the building is underway and, very soon, our partners will be providing sustainable, annual programmes and training for thirty graduates.

GET INVOLVED

£40 will provide clean water for two years, £270 will purchase a pregnant milk producing cow, or contact Steve for the latest project investment opportunities. Help us make a sustainable difference.
